Aston Martin DB4

1960

Gallery

This ex-Arizona DB4 resided for many years in Belgium, where the car was initially driven and enjoyed as a standard DB4 Coupé. Being of the right period, a supersound basis, but in need of TLC, the Belgian owner could not resist the temptation to transform his DB4 in a GT. This modification was at first very well researched and discussed with Aston Martin specialists in England before the job was started. After several years of painstakingly restoring and upgrading this DB4, the final result is breathtakingly impressive. Finished in Aston racing green metallic, the body is unmistakably GT with correct covered headlamp layout at the front and twin exterior filler caps at the rear. Also mechanically, this DB4 was upgraded into the smallest details to GT specification (twin spark cylinderhead - twin distributors - big capacity oilcooler - upgraded brakes - upgraded rear axle - competition aluminium tank - etc...) Superbly finished with a set of restored original Borrani wheels, this Aston Martin looks absolutely fabulous. As a result, this beauty was quickly sold to one of my long term, loyal customers. I wish him a lot of pleasure with this exclusive DB4
